Updated on Mom "Too Poor" to Rescue

Published on May 15, 2013

Many of you are now familiar with our support of the Rudozem animal shelter in Bulgaria run by Diane and Tony Rowles of England. Diane has been threatened with arrest if she does not bring her shelter into compliance with the state-of-the-art standards set forth by the European Union. When the couple moved to Bulgaria with their four children a few years ago, they never imagined that their lives would suddenly be surrendered to the mission of saving street animals, and they have helped thousands. With your Harmony Fund donations, the shelter renovations are now well underway and authorities have been appeased for now. While the shelter does not yet have all the funds they need to complete the work, donations continue to come through and we are optimistic about the future for this family and the animals they rescue.
